

Visit to JJ Hospital

On 20th October, a visit to pathology department of JJ Hospital was conducted. 7 students from SVKM's NMIMS SPPSPTM along with a few students from other colleges attended this session.

Session was conducted by Dr. Niveditha madam who is a second year resident in the hospital pursuing MD in Pathology. Initially, a brief introduction regarding the pathology department, autopsy department and haematology department was given. Later a small tour to these departments was conducted and working of each department was well explained. The process of tissue processing, right from the collection, the linking steps along with various instruments used till the staining of these sections was very well explained. Students were able to see preserved organs in autopsy department and various instruments used in the museum.

Later students were taken to M.O.P.D. department where information regarding the blood testing and body fluids analysis was given. An idea regarding the cancer cells and cancer biology was given and even students were able to observe "blast cells" under the microscope. With session coming towards an end, ma'am and the students had a small discussion regarding how this information will help in pharmacy field. Session was conducted for an hour. Feedback from students stated that they liked session and are hoping to attend similar visits to other hospitals as well.
